

DISCOVERING YOUR NETWORK

Below is a list of the most common categories or groups of individuals in a college student's personal network. The categories are there to make it easier for you to think of people you know that may be a resource during your career exploration and job search process. Take the next 5 minutes and try to fill up every line. Then star or circle the ones who might be able to talk to you about a career or major you are interested in.
